RANDLOPH

William Mann had quite a severe fall on Monday, which resulted in an injury to his knee.

At the Chandler Music hall Tuesday evening there was given "The Royal Slave" to a fair sized audience.

Mrs. J. D. Mitchell was summoned to Bridgewater on Tuesday by the severe illness of her father with pneumonia.

Rev. Homer White walked down town on Tuesday for the first time since his illness, and although comparatively well again he is not yet strong.

The children of the Baptist Sunday school had a delightful time at a sugar party given them on Monday evening at the chapel of the church.

Orson Woodcock is recovering from the effects of pneumonia, but is now having serious trouble with a disease of the heart from which he has suffered a long time.

The funeral of Mrs. Conolly, the mother of Mrs. Luce, occurred at the home of the daughter at ten o'clock Monday, the Rev. Fraser Metzger officiating and the interment was in South Loyalton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Angell and Mr. William Tracy left on the Tuesday morning train to attend the funeral of the late Ed. Hobart at Windsor. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hogart of this place were neither of them able to go.

The decision of Dr. Jones of Burlington, in regard to the son of Rev. and Mrs. Metzger, was not so favorable as hoped. He agreed with the resident physicians that the disease is spinal meningitis and said if his child remains as comfortable as now for ten days there might be slight hope of recovery, unless it proved to be of a tubercular nature.

Carl Bowman, living about four or five miles out near East Brantree, was operated upon for appendicitis at his home on Monday night by Dr. Rumrill, assisted by Russell and Angell. About two months ago he was so unfortunate as to break his leg while at work in the woods, from which he had partly recovered, when this developed. It is feared he cannot recover.

GOOD

Baldwin Apples

Yesterday we bought a number barrels of fine, hard New Hampshire Baldwins. They're really the best Apples for this time of year that we about ever saw. Nice, well-colored, good-sized and as when packed, pretty near. They are good flavored and will make excellent pies, besides they are not at all bad for eating purposes. They have been well taken care of during the winter and carefully packed. This is the important point: we bought them at a bargain and we're going to sell them to you at a bargain price. You can have them as long as they last for 30c peck or $2.25 barrel. Order early so as not to be disappointed by having them all sold. Phone 9-3.

THE "QUARTIER LATIN."

Samuel G. Blythe Says It Is The Fashion to Say It Has Deteriorated.

The Latin Quarter is not what it once was. There is authority for that statement. Any person who has been two consecutive weeks in Paris will tell you so with sobbs. The lamentations of those who have been there six months are heart-rending when they relate the same sorrowful story. It seems to be a personal grief, some bereavement that has saddened them for life. I don't know why, for the Latin Quarter seemed to be doing business when I was there. At any rate, there were droves of students, or persons I took to be students, with funny whiskers and long hair and flowing ties, and they got together at various places in the Quarter and drank beer or wine and sang songs and were quite studiously and painstakingly devil-may-care. And I went to one of their balls. It was most preposterously riotous. Everybody seemed to have a particular bit of wickedness—or what passed as wickedness—to do, and every one did his or her part at the right time and with all the outward symptoms of gusto. So far as I could learn the students do what they please. If they ever did more than that, then the Quarter has deteriorated. The trouble is, probably, that the persons who think it is not so gay and care-free as it once was, have grown a bit less careless and gay themselves. They have changed their view-point. However, it is the proper thing to say the Quarter has gone back. It seems people think you know all about it.—From the April Every-body's.
